Senate votes to restructure

By DAVE HOSICK
Student government editor

After approving several minor changes, the Student Senate voted Wednesday to place a referendum on next month's ballot to restructure the executive branch into four vice presidential positions.

The referendum, in the form of an amendment to the Student Government constitution, was proposed three weeks ago but was tabled twice to give senate members time to discuss changes and clarifications.

The amendment calls for the positions of executive vice president, financial vice president, Board of Governors trustee and chief of staff to be changed to vice presidential positions of academic, financial, public and student affairs.

Student Body President Blake Wood called for the restructure to "make the executives more accountable to their constituents and Student Senate."

A memorandum concerning the proposal reads that "for the first time in Student Government's history, there will be a proper administrative hierarchy within the executive branch. Each officer's jurisdiction is clearly defined."

Under the approved changes to the amendment, the student body president is required to hold a monthly public meeting with executives.

The revised amendment also separates the duties of the vice president of public affairs from the responsibilities of the Charleston City Council representative.

The changes were submitted by senate members Chris Boyster, Amy Levine and Rick Tucker.

Immunization laws affect spring student registration

By BRIAN HUCHEL
Campus editor

Students with no immunizations on record will be unable to preregister as part of the Health Service's renewed enforcement of a mandated state law.

A summer review by the Auditor General's office found the percentage of Eastern students without immunization records was higher than what state law dictates.

According to the law, students must have their immunization records on file before the next semester.

Eastern students without immunization records could have their academic records being frozen and be unable to pre-register for the 1995 spring semester.

"This immunization requirement has been in effect for years," said Dr. Richard Larson, director of the Health Service. "We have simply been going somewhat easy on it for the past couple years."

As of Sept. 9, there were 931 students - roughly 9 percent - who did not have the proper immunization files. Since the

Edgar, Netsch argue taxes in TV debate

CHICAGO (AP) - Jim Edgar and Dawn Clark Netsch clashed sharply in a televised debate Wednesday. He portrayed her as soft on crime and eager to raise taxes, while she said he had done little in four years and was trying to evade a commitment on whether he would call for a tax increase after the election.

"She's voted for over 50 tax increases," Edgar said in the first of two scheduled debates between the rivals in the race for governor.

But the Democratic candidate said Illinois' voters "are tired of being lied to .... He'll raise taxes after the election." Edgar claimed that two-out-of-three households would pay more under a Netsch plan to increase the income tax to provide more school funding. She immediately denied that, saying "Governor, we're going to send you back to school."

"Time and time again she has voted against tougher penalties for violent criminals," Edgar declared.

Netsch countered that Edgar had done nothing to make Illinois residents feel safer in his four years as governor.

"The ban on assault weapons? He quit as soon as (Senate President James) 'Pate' Philip opposed the ban," she said.

Netsch opened her portion of the debate by challenging Edgar to say whether he would call for a tax increase.

"If you are, they've a right to know," she said. "If you're not, they've a right to know how you intend to put the state back together again." Millions of dollars in Medicaid payments have been deferred to keep the state budget in balance. The state's bond rating has been downgraded twice as the balance in the general fund has grown thinner and thinner in recent years.

Netsch was asked if she might raise taxes beyond the increase she already has proposed for school funding.

"The answer is no," she said. "I am not anticipating further increases. And I am

Tuition forum to be held

By DAVE HOSICK
Student government editor

The Student Senate University Relations Committee will hold a forum tonight to discuss a likely tuition hike for the next academic year and the possibility of earmarking where additional funds from the hike might go.

The forum will be held at 7:30 p.m. tonight in the Taylor Hall lobby.

The Board of Governors plans to vote at its Oct. 27 meeting on a proposal that would increase tuition for the 1995-96 academic year by 3.5 to 4 percent.

Harvey Pettry, the committee chairman, said the forum will offer students a better insight into the proposed tuition hike.

"The discussion will focus on the budget process, where the money comes from, who appropriates it and where it will most likely go," Pettry said.

Eastern President David Jorns, Lou Hencken, vice president for student affairs, Student Body President Blake Wood and Gary Owen, Illinois Board of Higher Education student trustee, are scheduled to attend the forum.

Petry said the forum should answer any questions and ease tensions students may have about the proposed hike.

"Hopefully, as people realize where the money is coming from and how the state is lacking in its funding for Eastern, students will realize why problems occur annually with tuition," Pettry added.

Although many expect that the increase will automatically be approved, Pettry said students should still attend the forum to voice their concerns to the administration to ensure that money generated from the increase would be used effectively.

Petry said many students have told him they would not mind an increase if the money would be used to improve campus computer services and Booth Library.

Cyberspace harassment leads to women-only networks

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — For women, logging on to the Internet can be the computer equivalent of walking past construction workers on their lunch break.

"R u horny?" come the messages. "So what brings you here at this hour?"

"Wanna chat privately?"

Gender wasn't supposed to matter in cyberspace. But try telling that to anyone who has ever logged on under a name like Cindi or Veronica.

Rather than deal with the posturing and harassment, many women are logging on to women-only discussion groups scattered around cyberspace.

"It's not all 'Here's how cool I am' and 'Here's how clever I can be.' It's an attempt to connect, not to show off," said Fawn Fitter, a Bostonian who logs on to the women-only portion of the WELL, a 10,000-person computer network based in Sausalito, Calif.

There are at least 15 women-only areas — or conferences — on bulletin boards around the country, as well as a smaller number of men-only spaces. Users must speak to an operator to prove their sex before they can log on.

Women-only spaces don't mean male bashing. Last year the women of Meta Network in Washington started a topic called Celebrating Men.

For several weeks they filled it with their musings: "I love the way they look at you intensely."

"I love the way they smell after they exercise."

"I like the way they play with their dogs."

Then as a holiday gift they copied the whole list over to a community conference, so that all the men could read it.

"It really deepened our relationship with each other," said Lisa Kimball, one of the network's founders.

Over at New York City-based ECHO's women's conference, a group of younger women recently started an on-line version of the ever-popular

"Who'd you rather do?" game.

"They name names," said ECHO's Stacy Horn. "It's hysterical."

Some users on men-only conferences have other things on their mind.

"I see us struggling with being male in this society, and dealing with pain and emotional hurt," said Dana Lewis, a writer in Pennsylvania who uses Meta Network.

Gender-specific places on bulletin boards have their dangers, however, as a recent case in California illustrated.

Last month, three students at Santa Rosa Junior College in Northern California each won a $15,000 settlement in a sex discrimiannouncement of Health Service's new enforcement of the state law, Eastern has immunized or received immunization records for 179 students, bringing the total to 752.

"This has really put a load on the Health Service staff," Larson said. "We have definitely had more (students) come in than if we had not done anything differently. Some of these students have gotten four or five letters in the past asking them to come in to get the immunizations.

"There are some state schools that are even tougher than this," Larson added. "We have simply established an enforcement policy."

Currently, the health service policy at the University of Illinois at Champaign-Urbana says that students can not even start in the fall until they have their immunizations on record.

Students who are have not been immunized can receive injections at the Health Service for $5 apiece, with the addition of a $25 late processing.

at least answering the questions. Good luck if you can get the governor to answer." But Edgar said the proposals Netsch has made so far in the campaign would cost so much that she would need even more revenue to pay for them all.

"I think that the 42 percent increase in the state income tax is just starters, based on what she has promised, and we have three weeks to go in the campaign," he said.

One surprise for Netsch came when she was asked to tell the audience more about herself personally. She has been running a new television ad that likens her to someone named "Aunt Thelma," and she was asked to tell a bit about her personal thoughts and feelings since voters don't really know who "Aunt Thelma" is.

"I love to read .... I make it to the opera, I make it to White Sox games," she said. She said that she would in some ways prefer to be home with her husband, Walter, since Wednesday was their wedding anniversary.

Netsch also clearly sought to soften her image with voters, some of whom have told pollsters that they are put off by her professorial manner and appearance.

"It's time for a governor who is more than just a pretty face," Netsch said.

Netsch sought to portray Edgar as a do-nothing governor.

"Nothing has been done for the last four years," she said.

"There has been no action for four years," Edgar declared that he has presided over a dramatic recovery in the state's economy that has included sharp job growth. But Netsch said that states such as Michigan have far outstripped Illinois in creating new jobs.

Edgar asserted that he had been evenhanded in helping both downstate and Chicago, but his opponent said that he had backed off a number of plans to help the metropolitan area after they were opposed by Philip, R-Wood Dale. She cited a plan for a third major Chicago-area airport, riverboat gambling in the city and a ban on assault weapons.

The governor spent much of Wednesday afternoon resting in his Chicago apartment and going over briefing books.

Netsch, the state comptroller, closed herself with the high command of her campaign to prepare for one of her few remaining chances to reverse the momentum of a campaign that has handed her one setback after another.

The latest dismal news for Netsch came in results of the latest Chicago Tribune poll published in the newspaper's Wednesday editions.

Edgar held 61 percent to 22 percent for Netsch in the Oct. 14-16 poll of 866 probable voters. The error margin was 3 percentage points.

Netsch's camp showed no signs of being discouraged. "I think you've heard her say a number of times that she's never won a poll and never lost an election," said press aide Mike Kelleher.

Edgar's advisers, accustomed to winning every poll, said the unrelenting good news for the governor could breed overconfidence, a distinct danger with more than three weeks to go before Election Day.

"The governor will campaign from here on out just as if he had a narrow lead," press secretary Mike Lawrence said. "One concern I have is complacency ... The governor's energy levels are high, and we're trying to make sure the energy level stays up on the part of his supporters." Netsch told reporters Tuesday the debate did not offer the chance for a dramatic stroke that would propel her into the lead.

But she made it plain that she hoped to dig herself out of the doldrums, at least part way, by spotlighting Edgar's refusal to rule out a tax increase.

She told a news conference at a Chicago grocery on Tuesday that the governor might be planning to reimpose a sales tax on food and medicine.

Edgar replied that she was "trying to divert attention from the cornerstone of her campaign, which is to raise taxes." But Lt.

Gov. Bob Kustra said only hours later that an increase in the cigarette tax was "a possibility next year." announcement of Health Service's new enforcement of the state law, Eastern has immunized or received immunization records for 179 students, bringing the total to 752.

Senate aims to avoid breakdowns

By CHAD GALLAGHER
Staff writer

Recent breakdowns in communication between the Faculty Senate and its committee representatives have members blaming themselves, while others saying it was a breakdown that could not be avoided.

The senate passed a motion Tuesday that invites its representatives to report on issues dealing with gender equity. Senate members were concerned about not being informed about the elimination of men's swimming and wrestling.

The motion was a result of that miscommunication, senate members said.

"We probably have not facilitated communications between the senate and committee members as well as might be desirable," senate Chairman John Allison said. "It happens – and no one is to blame but a lack of communication."

"We should be more proactive in maintaining communication between committees and the senate about gender equity or any other matters," Allison said.

Senate member Ron Gholson said he felt "strongly" that the lack of communication lies within the senate and not the committee representatives. Several Faculty Senate committee members knew about the change in sports, but were sworn to secrecy.

"It is the senate's own fault," Gholson said. "When the senate appoints someone to represent it, I believe it is the responsibility of the senate to occasionally spend time to see what is happening with these representatives."

Senate member Bill Kirk said the problem is nothing more than a breakdown in communication.

"I don't think there is anything here to fish for," Kirk said. "We all need to take responsibility for the breakdown rather than blame people."

Eastern President David Jorns, who was accused by the senate of not complying with one of its constitutional amendments, said "it's something the senate has to settle themselves."

According to the constitution, the Faculty Senate's executive committee must be informed of any major changes affecting faculty.

"All I can say is that the Intercollegiate Athletic Board was involved and they had a large concentration of Faculty Senate representation," Jorns said.

The Intercollegiate Athletic Board, which decided on the cuts to comply with the Department of Education's Office of Civil Rights gender equity policy, consisted of five senate-appointed members and three alternates.

"I'm concerned that the senate seems to have been distracted by this matter, and a number of other issues that are equally important have been overlooked," Jorns said.

He did not elaborate.

Senate member Lankford Walker said he thought a few simple revisions in communication could be made to alleviate future lapses.

"(Committee members) need to be a little bit more responsible in recognizing their duty to report to the senate," Walker said.

Coupon book to benefit fire victims

By REAGAN BRANHAM
Staff writer

One Student Senate member and a handful of others are contacting local businesses to put together a coupon booklet for more than 50 students displaced by a fire in Carman Hall.

The booklet would allow students displaced by the fire to receive free and discounted food and personal items from participating area businesses.

Forty-five students living on the sixth floor were displaced after the Oct. 7 fire started in Room 610 of Carman's north tower.

Smoke and water damage forced students on the sixth floor and some students on the fifth and seventh floors to be moved to hall lounges and other available rooms.

Fire officials say the fire was caused by a curling iron that was left on a bed.

Senate member Shannon Andrews is coordinating the booklet efforts.

Hall said he realizes the importance of helping those victims affected by the fire.

"Personally I've had family members put out by fires, and they got helped out," Hall said.

Andrews said she is contacting local businesses to contribute to the booklet. She expects replies within the next few weeks.

Andrews said she and several other students are talking to businesses such as Maurice's, Sycamore, Hallmark, Dale Bales, Coach Eddies and grocery stores to see if they will help.

Forum to address school bond issue

By HEIDI KEIBLER
Staff writer

An open forum to address the Charleston school district bond issue referendum will be held tonight to air opinions on both sides of the issue.

The Coles County League of Women Voters is sponsoring the forum which will be from 7:30 p.m. to 8:30 p.m. at the public health building, 825 18th St.

In the Nov. 8 general election, Charleston residents will vote whether the school board should issue bonds to raise $3.4 million for the district's education fund.

The education fund is made up of several main areas of spending, including teacher salaries, building supplies and stipends for extra-curricular activities, books and bills.

If the measure is approved, the district's property tax rate would increase by 56 cents for 5 years until the bonds are repaid. For example, the property tax on a home worth $60,000 would increase $112 a year.

Ruth Leigh, chair of the league's educational committee, will serve as the forum's moderator. She said audience members will be encouraged to anonymously write down questions for her to read to panelists.

"We want to hear openly the pros and cons of the issue," Leigh said. "It's always been the belief of the league that people make the wisest decisions when they understand an issue from both sides."

Sitting on the panel to answer questions will be: Charleston Superintendent Terry Weir; Steve Hutti, representing the Charleston school board; Dick Stark, representing area parents who have children in schools; Bob Taylor, representing area businesses and a representative from the Coles County Farm Bureau.

Leigh said she expects the audience to address issues such as how cuts in the school's budget would affect area businesses and how a school affects its surrounding community outside of simply educating its children.

If the bond measure does not pass, Weir said the district would have to make up to $500,000 in cuts from the education fund. The district has already made $1.5 million in budget cuts over the past few years and has raised student fees.

Interviews to begin for vice president's post

By ADAM McHUGH
Administration editor

The first of five candidates for the vice president for business affairs position will begin on-campus interviews today.

Woods Bowman, the chief financial officer of Cook County, will go through a two-day interview schedule starting at 7 a.m. today.

The university community will have an opportunity to speak to Bowman at an open forum from 1-1:45 p.m. Friday in the Scharer Room of the Martin Luther King Jr. University Union.

Originally there were six finalists for the post, but Richard Kozak, associate vice president for finance and administration at the University of South Dakota, dropped out of the running last week.

The university is looking for a successor to Charles Colbert, who left this summer to take a position at the University of Illinois.

Bowman will begin his interview sessions at 7 a.m. today with a breakfast with members of the 17-member vice presidential search committee.

Bowman is responsible for the financial management of Cook County, an area that encompasses Chicago and has a $2.1 billion budget and 27,000 employees.

The next candidate, Steven Wilson, vice president for administration at the University of Maryland in Cambridge, will be interviewed Monday and Tuesday.

Kimball should quit horse racing as sign of faith

Sheriff Jim Kimball's suspension from harness racing last year raises troubling ethical questions about Coles County's chief law-enforcement officer and his off-duty habits.

Although the suspension itself is not a serious offense, the mere hint of impropriety sullies Kimball's re-election bid next month.

Editorial Kimball, who has been sheriff since 1986, was sanctioned by the Illinois Racing Board after a horse of his tested positive for morphine. He was banned for six months from the grounds of all race tracks and off-track facilities.

Kimball's horse Once a Night finished second in March 1993 at a race at Fairmont Park in Collinsville. Kimball was forced to forfeit a $650 purse after the horse was disqualified for failing a routine drug test.

An inquiry did not show how morphine got into the horse, but Kimball was held responsible as a trainer. He was not technically found guilty of injecting the narcotic.

Morphine, commonly used as a painkiller in humans, can enhance performance in horses, racing officials say.

Kimball has denied injecting the horse and said he doesn't know how morphine got into the animal's system.

Voters should not assume Kimball was responsible for drugging the horse. Still, the implication, however small, hurts his credibility as an officer of the law.

Although Kimball's tenure has been mostly free of problems, there's a pall of dishonesty hanging over the final weeks of his campaign.

Voters may start to doubt the motives of a sheriff connected to an illegal drug incident, the same sheriff who is quick to tout his department's drug-fighting efforts.

As a show of good faith, Kimball ought to take the suspension as a lesson of sorts and remove himself from harness racing. That would help put to rest doubts about his sincerity going into the Nov. 8 election.

The county sheriff is trusted with a tremendous amount of authority, and voters rightfully expect him to be a model of good conduct.

Blood drive group thanks students, citizens for help

Dear editor:

The Eastern Blood Drive Committee and blood recipients would like to thank the following for their support of the blood drive held from Sept. 26 through the 29. Thanks to all the students, faculty and staff who donated blood - you helped save many lives.

Those students who volunteered their time to work at the blood drive are also greatly appreciated. We would also like to thank the faculty and staff who supported the blood drive by promoting it in their classes and encouraging their students to give blood.

We thank Dr. Pryor, Dr. Merritt and Mike Chron, all from the speech department, as well as all those students who made speeches about the blood drive. Thank you to WEIU for your support. Publicity is vital to a blood drive.

The following businesses are thanked for the publicity and support: The Bank of Charleston, Max Market, Taco Bell, Eli Sidwell, Midas, Blimpie and Dominoes.

Thank you Ted from Copy Express, everyone from the Scheduling Office for all your help and Sgt. Ron Osborne and all of the other officers from the University Police Department.

Haiti Connection thanks students, residents for support

Dear editor:

The members of the Haiti Connection would like to thank you, the residents of Charleston and Eastern students, for your generosity and continuing support in our efforts.

Before the school year had started, you had helped raise more than $2,000 for our projects in Haiti at our fall yard sale. At CommunityFest

'94, members of the Haiti Connection were touched by the kindness and charitableness of those who stopped by the Haiti Connection booth.

With the money you have so generously donated, you have employed 60 Haitians for three months in the effort of constructing a building which will serve as a kitchen and a cafeteria, a health clinic and a depot for distribution of food.

You have helped provide food for the poor, you have sponsored prenatal nutrition classes for women and you have made it possible for us to take trips to Haiti to work and meet with the people of the country.

Through the warmth of your hearts and your generous hands, you have cared for many people who were in desperate need. We are thankful to be working with a conscious, caring community. Peace.

Homecoming spirit is fine, but not when it hurts someone

Dear editor:

A recent editorial in The Daily Eastern News stated that Homecoming is for everyone. However, many of the smaller organizations and students who are not in an organization at all may no longer want to take part in the week's activities due to the aggressiveness of several fraternities and sororities.

BACCHUS met at 8:30 p.m. in the lobby of Taylor Hall to go together as a group to the pep rally/bonfire. Since we are a rather small group and we arrived early, we were able to get a good spot up in front, next to the band.

We were not there long though, because approximately 15 minutes later the Alpha Gamma Deltas and the Delta Tau Deltas arrived behind us.

One of the Delta Tau Deltas shouted to push all the girls up to the front, and the Alpha Gams began to shove and elbow through the members of BACCHUS.

Unfortunately, I am in an ankle brace from a previous injury and was unable to move out of their way fast enough. One of the "ladies" of Alpha Gamma Delta kicked me in my injured ankle.

As I stood in the midst of these girls with tears streaming down my face, only one of them even had the common decency to ask me if I was OK or if I needed help.

I know that spirit points are important to Homecoming participants, but it's one thing to show spirit for fun and a completely different thing when it causes other students bodily harm.

I guess the Alpha Gamma Deltas and the Delta Tau Deltas really "kicked" off Homecoming well, since they won first place for spirit and first place overall. I am now on crutches with a purple and green ankle that is so swollen I can't even wear a shoe.

The purpose of this letter was not to bash greeks, but I would like to thank the fine members of Alpha Gamma Delta and Delta Tau Delta for ruining Homecoming for my friends and me.

Reader's views on Weaver votes was 'slanted'

Dear editor:

I read with interest the attack on Rep. Mike Weaver by professor John Allison on behalf of his colleague, Mike's opponent.

After taking a closer look at the bills he referenced, it became evident that his interpretation was a bit slanted. Mike's vote against using recycled rubber tires on highways was because of the 30-plus percent higher cost and would have meant fewer highway miles or increased taxes.

Mike voted against local pesticide rules because of the patchwork quilt of different laws that would have made enforcement a nightmare, so he instead opted for a state-wide provision.

What we need are more thoughtful legislators like Mike Weaver who will study the effects of a bill rather than just see the title and decide it looks nice. Mike has worked hard to keep our taxes from skyrocketing due to liberal policies that would increase the scope and cost of government in our lives.

I, for one, will continue to support less government, local service and Mike Weaver.

Forum to focus on bond issue

By HEIDI KEIBLER
Staff writer

An open forum to address the Charleston school district bond issue referendum will be held tonight to air opinions on both sides of the issue.

The Coles County League of Women Voters is sponsoring the forum which will be from 7:30 p.m. to 8:30 p.m. at the public health building, 825 18th St.

In the Nov. 8 general election, Charleston residents will vote whether the school board should issue bonds to raise $3.4 million for the district's education fund.

The education fund is made up of several main areas of spending, including teacher salaries, building supplies and stipends for extra-curricular activities, books and bills.

If the measure is approved, the district's property tax rate would increase by 56 cents for 5 years until the bonds are repayed. For example, the property tax on a home worth $60,000 would increase $112 a year.

Ruth Leigh, chair of the league's educational committee, will serve as the forum's moderator. She said audience members will be encouraged to anonymously write down questions for her to read to panelists.

Sitting on the panel to answer questions will be: Charleston Superintendent Terry Weir; Steve Hutti, representing the Charleston school board; Dick Stark, representing area parents who have children in schools; Bob Taylor, representing area businesses and a representative from the Coles County Farm Bureau.

Leigh said she expects the audience to address issues such as how cuts in the school's budget would affect area businesses and how a school affects its surrounding community outside of simply educating its children.

If the bond measure does not pass, Weir said the district would have to make up to $500,000 in cuts from the education fund. The district has already made $1.5 million in budget cuts over the past few years and has raised student fees.

Charleston receives grant for new trees

By MARK FORSTNEGER
Staff writer

Charleston may be planting a lot of trees around the area after receiving one of the largest state grants to be awarded toward urban forestry last week.

Charleston is among 41 Illinois cities and park districts that will share $796,197 to plant trees on public lands. Charleston received $38,690, one of the highest grants from the state.

The grant is a part of the Illinois Department of Conservation Urban Forestry Program's U.S. Small Business Administration Tree Planting Initiative.

Charleston must provide a minimum 40 percent of matching funds to receive the grant, meaning the Charleston City Council will have to come up with $25,793, said Melody Allison, chairwoman of the Charleston Tree Commission.

"(The Tree Commission) will be meeting with the mayor in a couple of days to look it over," Allison said.

She expects matching funds to come from both the city and private sources.

When Charleston applied for the grant in March, Nordin said the city had to compete against other area communities of similar size in its region of the state.

"You have to have some kind of a serious community forest program, which we've been working on for two years, a tree board, you have to spend two dollars per capita in-kind services, you have to have a tree ordinance and basically you just have to have some kind of street tree policy."

Nordin said the grant will enable Charleston to plant trees throughout the city.

"I estimate (the $38,690) should pay for the purchase and planting of 600 two-inch caliber trees, of a large variety of species," he said.

The Tree Commission will review a list of different trees at its Nov. 1 meeting, Nordin said. He said the commission will recommend to the Charleston City Council which trees to purchase and plant.

The council will invite bids from 17 local nurseries and 11 landscaping companies, but Nordin said the contract will be split among several companies instead of going to just one.

Nordin said the majority of trees will be planted in parkways along city streets. The needs of the Recreation Department and local schools will also be taken into account when selecting sites, he added.

Nordin said 25 percent of the city's parkways have been inventoried so far. He expects to have trees planted along most of the streets by next summer.

"We have 1,300 spaces to plant trees," Nordin said, "But we also have to worry about wires, spacing limitations, and underground utilities."

Six teens charged with beating Amish

NEW HOLLAND, Pa. (AP) — Six teen-agers allegedly attacked Amish people with rocks and brooms because they thought their victims' religion wouldn't allow them to call police.

These Amish, however, did call police and the six teens were arrested.

The teen-agers believed they were picking on Old Order Amish and Groffdale Conference Mennonites, members of religious sects that typically don't call police.

The victims were Plain Sect Amish, and "our Plain Sect people do call the police," Officer Rodney Hartman said.

The teen-agers threw rocks at the Amish, beat them with brooms and cans, and robbed one boy of $2 between Sept. 25 and Oct. 4 in the town about 50 miles west of Philadelphia, Hartman said.

The victims gave officers descriptions of the attackers, their cars and in some cases were even able to give names, police said.

Five people, including a 4-year-old girl, were injured in the attacks.

Cutural speaker to talk today

By STEPHANIE CARROLL
Activities editor

A visiting former professor and consultant to business and industry on cultural diversity will present a lecture today titled "Cultural Diversity in Industry and Academia."

Mary Thibodeaux, associate dean for student service for the College of Business at the University of North Texas, will speak at 4 p.m. in Room 122 of Lumpkin Hall.

The lecture, organized by the department of management and marketing, is free and open to the public.

Thibodeaux has served as a consultant on cultural diversity for large corporations, including Boeing, Lockheed and Southwestern Airlines.

Aline Arnold, chairman of management and marketing, said Thibodeaux's areas of specialty include speaking on self-directed work teams.

"She will be speaking on the team approach in the workplace," Arnold said. "Part of the idea of Total Quality Management, which is important in large business and at the university, is the concept of using teams."

When Thibodeaux spoke at Eastern before, she consulted with the university on issues such as cultural diversity and minority recruiting.

"Cultural diversity is a high priority at our university and in our department," Arnold said.

Arnold said the lecture is not just for business students or professionals.

"The lecture is for anyone," Arnold said. "The teamwork concept applies to all areas."

Homemade bomb explodes in Baghdad mosque, kills one

BAGHDAD, Iraq (AP) — A bomb exploded Wednesday in the mosque of Baghdad's Religious Affairs Ministry, killing one man and seriously wounding five.

Iraqi television identified the fatality as Attallah Mohammed Salah, director of the endowments office. It said three of the wounded from the time bomb, which contained 6 pounds of explosives, were women.

The television quoted civil defense officials as saying the explosives had been wrapped in batteries and ignited at 11 a.m. with a homemade detonator powered by the batteries.

The TV showed pictures of the victims covered in blood and bandages following the blast inside the walled compound in the north Baghdad district of Bab al-Moadam.

There was no claim of responsibility, but the TV blamed "agents hired by the enemies of Iraq."

That is usually considered to be a reference to Kurdish separatists or Iranian-linked Shiite Muslim rebels who launched ill-fated uprisings against the Baghdad regime in March 1991 following Iraq's Gulf War defeat.

The last such attack was Aug. 22, when a booby-trapped car exploded outside the state-run Al-Joumhouriya newspaper office, causing no casualties.

There has been a string of bombings over the last two years as U.N. sanctions imposed after Iraq's August 1990 invasion of Kuwait throttled the country's economy, causing widespread hunger and poverty.

But not all these attacks have been reported by the official media as the government sought to play down public discontent.

The TV images of Wednesday's bombing showed windows of the rooms were shattered and the frame of the aluminum ceiling collapsed into the wreckage of broken glass and desks.

Cheerleaders fear fowl territory

IOWA CITY, Iowa (AP) — Ahh, remember the good old days when you could enjoy an occasional dead chicken? At the University of Iowa, they do.

It looks like the fun is over, though.

Security has been stepped up at Kinnick Stadium during football games, and the cheerleaders have been moved away from the student section because of debris raining down from the stands. And it's not just dead chickens, either.

It's coins, marshmallows, bottles and eggs.

In this case, however, we know which came first. It was the chicken.

"Back in the old Fieldhouse they used to use a starter's gun at basketball games and you'd have this real loud 'Bang!'" recalled George Wine, Iowa's sports information director emeritus.

"Every once in a while some smart-aleck student would bring a chicken and throw it from the upper deck. Time that baby just right, you know, about two seconds before the gun, and bang-splat! That chicken would land right on the floor.

"That was a pretty funny deal back then."

Iowa hasn't played in the Fieldhouse since 1983, but someone has carried the chicken tradition at least once to the football stadium.

No serious injuries have been reported, but Michele Anderson, Iowa's spirit coordinator, was grazed by a broken bottle last year.

And she said she saw a man hit in the chest with a chicken.

"I know it sounds funny, but it's not," she said.

She has decided to move her cheerleaders away from their customary northwest corner of the stadium — away from fowl territory, so to speak.

Israeli peace hopes dulled by bombing

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) – The terror at the edges of the quest for Middle East peace exploded Wednesday when a bomb on a crowded city bus killed 22 people and turned a bustling street into a scene from a slaughterhouse.

The attack, the worst in Israel in 16 years, wounded 48 people.

Police blamed it on a suicide bomber.

Some Israelis cried for vengeance against the Islamic radicals who have claimed responsibility for three major attacks in 10 days.

Shouts of "Death to the Arabs!" were heard from bystanders on the seaside city's main thoroughfare as severed arms and legs were gathered for burial, some from on top of four-story buildings.

"It will end. It has to end. We will tear them to bits," said President Ezer Weizman, who called for "extraordinary action" to root out Islamic extremists.

Police suspected a West Bank fugitive known as "The Engineer" of planning the attack, according to Israeli news reports.

The attack sparked anti-government protests around the country and gave Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin little choice but to retaliate against extremist groups who oppose Israel-Arab peace-making.

In a dramatic television address, an angry Rabin said

Clinton condemns bombing

WASHINGTON (AP) – President Clinton condemned the bombing in Tel Aviv on Wednesday as "an outrage against the conscience of the world" and held to his plan to go to the Middle East next week to promote peace between Israel and the Arabs.

He urged other nations to deny haven and support for those responsible for the worst attack the city has sustained in nearly 20 years. In Damascus, U.S. Ambassador Christopher Ross urged Syrian foreign ministry officials to use their influence in militant circles.

"We are casting a wide net, appealing to friends and foes alike," said a senior State Department official of the renewed U.S. campaign to deprive terrorist groups of sanctuary and unhampered travel between countries.

Department officials said Hamas, a fundamentalist group funded mostly by Iran, apparently was responsible for the bombing that killed 22 people and wounded 48 on a main Tel Aviv thoroughfare.

"It must be made plain that this kind of incident is not cost-free for Hamas," Secretary of State Warren Christopher said as he added his denunciation of "these really hideous acts against civilians."

Iran and Syria are among seven countries the State Department has identified as supporters of terrorism.

"You can conclude that we have regular and direct conversations with the government of Syria on the subject," Michael McCurry, the department spokesman, said.

However, other U.S. officials said Syria was not being singled out. Hamas has support throughout the region and "we are asking for the help of government leaders everywhere."

Israel's ambassador, Itamar Rabinovich, said Hamas "is not a Syria-oriented outfit."

"Iran is the address," Rabinovich said at a news conference.

Sudan also backed the group in the past, but the support is tapering off, the ambassador said.

At the same time, he called on the Palestinian authority in Gaza to dismantle Hamas' structure there and said Arabs were realizing Hamas was as much a threat to them as to Israelis.

Clinton is weighing a visit to Damascus as part of his trip. His main purpose would be to encourage President Hafez Assad to come to terms with Israel. When they met in January in Geneva, Switzerland, the Syrian leader declared peace was a "strategic option," but the two sides are in disagreement on territory, security and peace terms.

would be tightened for Clinton's visit.

Also shattered was the peace of mind Israelis prize in Tel Aviv, a lively seaside metropolis that often seems a refuge from the bloodshed of the Arab-Israeli conflict.

"It's like Russian roulette living in this country," said Ronny Levy. "Every day someone else gets killed."

Israel sealed off the Gaza Strip and West Bank after the mid-morning blast, claimed by the radical Islamic group Hamas in a statement read in Gaza mosques.

The group also was blamed for a Sept. 10 shooting spree in Jerusalem that killed two bystanders. Militants then kidnapped a soldier, killing him just as commandos stormed their safehouse Friday. A commando and three militants were also killed.

Officials indicated Israel might respond with an unprecedented blow against Hamas' armed wing, Izzedine al-Qassam.

Rabin cut short a trip to London, rushing back to consult with security officials and Cabinet ministers. Dozens of demonstrators outside his Defense Ministry office greeted him with chants of "Rabin Resign." Angry demonstrators also gathered at Dizengoff Square near the scene of the blast, in Jerusalem and throughout the country.

he would seek legislative backing for a wide-ranging crackdown on the fundamentalists, while at the same time pressing ahead in peace talks with the Palestine Liberation Organization.

Departing from his cautious approach to peacemaking, he stressed the need for a final political settlement that will divorce Israelis from the Palestinians of West Bank and Gaza Strip.

"We need a separation between us and the Palestinians, not just for days but as a way of life," Rabin said.

The apparent suicide bombing reminded Israelis of their continued vulnerability to terrorism, even as the country prepares to sign a peace agreement with Jordan next week.

President Clinton said he still would attend the ceremony on the Israel-Jordan border. Israel Radio said security

Panther swimmers ready for season

Men look to season with improved team

By JOHN BATES
Staff writer

The men's swimming team will begin its final season this weekend stemming from the Title IX cuts about a month ago, but with an improved team, it might be going out in style.

"We're much improved from over a year ago, which was a much improved team prior to that," said coach Ray Padovan. "We are the best balanced we've had in a long time, all the way through from freshmen on up to senior class. I wouldn't say that we have any national qualifiers, but we have some extremely talented and versatile swimmers."

The 24-man roster, which is up from 19 last year, includes co-captains Jason Wrone and Ron Steffy, who will be leading an "exceptional" freshmen class including Dan Cherwin, Doug Habben, Drew Sheperdson, Scott Propst and Mike Blaylock.

Despite its above average roster the team has to contend with distractions left in the wake of the Title IX ruling, a civil rights clause which forced Eastern to drop its men swimming and wrestling programs while starting a women's soccer program to decrease the disparity between men and women athletes.

"We're still trying to boost the morale a little bit, because everybody is still a little down about it," Wrone said.

"They sat there and digested everything," Padovan said. "It's kind of a situation - do you just quit and walk away? Well, the people who are not planning to transfer or look otherwise, this is their last real shot at it, and they're going to give it their all. And anyone who's looking to transfer someplace next year also having a good season is important."

"We know we have a very competitive group and we're looking forward to it. We don't like what's going to happen next year, but as far as this season, we're getting more and more enthused as we are getting over the negative part of it."

The swimming team's schedule begins at Millikin on Friday, Northeastern Illinois on Saturday and Northern Iowa on Oct. 29. The Panthers will then play the following four teams at home: Bradley on Nov. 3, Indianapolis on Nov. 5, St. Louis on Nov. 17 and Evansville on Dec. 9.

The Panther Invitational will be held on Nov. 11-12. The Mid-Continent Conference Championship will be on Feb. 23-25 in Buffalo.

Lady Panthers try to concentrate on last year with male teammates

By JOHN BATES
Staff writer

Unlike their male counterparts, the Lady Panthers' swimming days are not numbered, but that doesn't mean that their season will not to be affected, too.

"We're one team. We really don't view ourselves as two teams," said coach Ray Padovan. "We train together, and when we travel, all of our meets are together. When you're with someone all year and in contact with them eight months a year, they're every bit as much of a part of your team as if you were actually competing the same events against each other."

"We really don't view ourselves as two different teams. We are a swim team."

"It's been really rough, but I think it's making us closer," said junior Maridee Hisgen.

Padovan, who is in his 29th year as the swimming coach, believes that Hisgen, as well as Annell Metzger and Shelley Untersee, will be the key players on the 26-person roster, but he expects the Lady Panthers to rely more on the team's depth.

"A lot of teams might have 10 key people," Padovan said. "Whether we're going to win or lose is going to be done mostly on balance or depth rather than five or six individuals. We're going to depend on 18 people."

With the exception of five new swimmers, Padovan said this year's team is similar to last season's, which finished with a 5-6 record.

He also expects the Lady Panthers to finish their conference season a little closer to Western Illinois since Western has a new coach and a number of new swimmers. Valparaiso is also expected to be of Eastern's caliber.

Eastern's schedule begins on Friday at Millikin, followed by the start of their conference schedule at Northeastern Illinois on Saturday. Their season ends with the Mid-Continent Conference Championship on Feb. 23-25.

Bears' Harris ready for fullback job

LAKE FOREST (AP) – Chicago Bears rookie Raymont Harris one day expected to be a starter. He couldn't have guessed how soon.

Merril Hoge's retirement Monday because of two concussions has moved Harris into the position of top fullback.

Harris, at age 23, is ready to step in and follow the man who's been teaching him the new position.

"I always had an idea I would be playing, but I never thought it would be this soon," he said.

"Don't get me wrong, I came into this situation knowing I was a fourth-round draft pick and everything," Harris said Wednesday as the Bears got ready for Sunday's game in Detroit.

Harris started for Hoge two weeks ago, carrying seven times for 28 yards and catching three passes for 18 more. The fifth-leading rusher in Ohio State history, Harris was converted to fullback in training camp since the Bears already had Lewis Tillman, Tim Worley and Robert Green as tailbacks.

"He's been someone who has been like somewhat of a mentor to me," Harris said of Hoge.

"I came in with the idea I would be like his protege or understudy and watch and see what he would do and hopefully get groomed for the fullback position," said Harris.

"Unfortunately, (after) what happened to him, I've had to step up quicker. He let me know that there will be good times and bad times, and I have to take them both in stride."

"Raymont is probably as excited as anybody. He's a very solid player," said Bears quarterback Erik Kramer, ready to face his old team Sunday after missing three games with a separated shoulder.

"Personally, I'm going to miss Merrill being back there. I wish he was back there. We just have to go on."

Harris, at 6-foot and 225 pounds, is not oversized for fullback. His blocking is something he's had to work on since making the transition to fullback.

"It's gotten a lot better. I've graded terrible, to awful, to all right," said Harris.

"He needs to keep blocking if he wants the ball. He's come a long way from being a tailback. I like that progression," said Bears coach Dave Wannstedt.

Harris said he's not feeling any additional pressure to perform because he's a rookie or because he's a starter so early in his career. In his final game with Ohio State, he gained 235 yards on 39 carries and scored three touchdowns in a Holiday Bowl victory over BYU.

UNLV purchases ex-coach's contract

LAS VEGAS (AP) – UNLV moved to get its basketball program in order Wednesday, finalizing a $1.8 million buyout of Rollie Massimino's contract and setting cheaper terms for the new coach.

Whether the new coach would be former UNLV assistant Tim Grgurich or an interim coach hired just for the upcoming season remained up in the air pending a late afternoon deadline set by UNLV interim president Kenny Guinn.

"I want some action one way or another," Guinn said. "I've got to have a recommendation today. We have an obligation to these student-athletes." Grgurich reportedly had agreed in principle to take the job, but Guinn said there were personal differences between Grgurich and athletic director Jim Weaver that had to be worked out.

"We do not have a deal at this time," Guinn told a morning meeting of the University of Nevada Board of Regents. "We do not have the chemistry to make that a doable deal."

Guinn told regents that if Grgurich was not hired Wednesday, UNLV would turn to an interim coach to take over the program for the upcoming season while a new permanent coach was being sought.

"We have been talking to other people," he said. "The basketball season has begun. There's not a lot of people available. But we will find someone to put on the court."

Whoever that is will find himself coaching at a salary far less than the nearly $900,000 annual pact that Massimino enjoyed.

Guinn said the new coach will not earn more than $300,000 a year, including money paid under the university's shoe contract.

"I personally don't think they deserve the biggest and fanciest office at the university," Guinn said. "I don't think we should pay a coach $1 million, $800,000 or even $500,000."

Guinn made the comments to regents called into special session to consider the buyout of Massimino's contract reached last week with the former coach. Under the buyout, Massimino will get about $375,000 a year for five years.

Regents voted 8-3 to approve the buyout after hearing Guinn say it was preferable to battling it out in court with Massimino. Guinn said he did not fire Massimino, whom he said initiated the buyout talks.

Rison, Sanders fined $7,500 for fight

SANTA CLARA, Calif. (AP) – Deion Sanders and Andre Rison were fined $7,500 each by the NFL on Wednesday for their weekend fight in which they traded slaps and punches in the middle of the field.

The skirmish came during the second quarter of the San Francisco 49ers' 42-3 rout of the Atlanta Falcons at the Georgia Dome. The game was Sanders' first against his former team since joining San Francisco as a free agent Sept. 15.

Though game officials penalized Sanders as the fight's "instigator," the league found both players at fault.

"Obviously, we have a policy against fighting and obviously both players were in violation of that policy," NFL spokesman Reggie Roberts said. "Both players have been fined $7,500 and as far we're concerned that's the end of it."

Roberts said the fines will be distributed to a charity of the offending player's choice. Should they choose to appeal, they must do so in writing to commissioner Paul Tagliabue.

Sanders said through the team he would not contest the fine.

"I expected to be fined," Sanders said. "I've got to live with what I did. I respect the decision."

Rison was not immediately available for comment. A message seeking his reaction was left with the Falcons.

San Francisco coach George Seifert said he wasn't surprised both players were fined.

"I think the interesting thing that came out of it, with everybody viewing the film, was that Deion was not necessarily the instigator of the thing as was previously presented," Seifert said. "Not that that makes any difference. It doesn't make him right. In that situation, you're just not supposed to do that."

Sanders said he had bumped Rison hard while defending him on a previous play and inadvertently poked him in the eye. Rison then retaliated on the next play, getting underneath his face-mask and jamming Sanders beneath the chin. The two began to exchange blows furiously before officials broke it up.

said of the attitude of his former starter. "It's got to be a tremendous disappointment to him, but he's getting over that. (And) we'd certainly consider (playing Mauch at quarterback) depending on how bad it gets."

"I've talked to Pete, because he's got to keep himself mentally ready, which he will."

Eastern also plans to move flanker Greg Jensik to the slot receiver and put freshman Anton Manuel on the outside in the Panthers' three wideout set.

- The Panthers are also hurting in the backfield, only taking four running backs to Macomb this weekend. Freshmen Kelvyn Russell and Ibrahim Bawa will back up starters Willie High and Chris Hicks at tailback and fullback respectively, but the rookie duo has only one game of college experience, that being Bawa's extended playing time against Lock Haven State a month ago.

But with the dismissal of Bill Korosec and with fullback Bryan Jasker still sidelined with a knee injury, Eastern has simply run out of bodies.

"There's no alternative," Spoo said. "Hopefully, they can get their assignments completed, and naturally, we hope that they can pick up what needs to be done."

How many Division I-A teams does McNair face?

None. But he still deserves a Heisman?

How many Butkus Award candidates does he come across?

None. Yet still Heisman material?

I think not.

The seven teams Alcorn State (5-2) has played are a combined 19-25. And in the most recent Sagarin ratings of all the NCAA Division I football programs, only two of those teams rank above Eastern Illinois.

This is not a slam on the Panthers in any way but simply a reality check.

If Alcorn State was in the Gateway Conference and McNair ran up big numbers, most would simply say, 'Big deal - He's playing against teams like Eastern and Southern Illinois.'

And they would be right.

Most recently, McNair threw for five touchdowns and ran for another three against a hapless Prairie View team which has yet to win a game.

Prairie View has been outscored 263-44 this season but still people think this is the type of competition against which to base a Heisman contender.

Yeah right. And Ron Powlus is the next Joe Montana.

QB doesn't deserve the attention

Let me get this straight. Quarterback Steve McNair is tearing up the defenses of such teams as Mississippi Valley State (2-5), Tennessee-Chattanooga (2-4) and Prairie View (0-7), and people want to give him the Heisman Trophy?

Are they on drugs? Heisman trophies go to players on Division I-A programs (mostly major programs) plain and simple. There are no exceptions. But still McNair, who plays on Division I-AA Alcorn State, has been thrust into the Heisman limelight by the so-called football "experts" simply because he is running up huge numbers against teams that would have a tough time beating Eastern Illinois!

McNair-a-mania has gotten so bad that the Liberty Bowl's selection committee has considered Alcorn State for its annual game, even though bowl teams must win six games against Division I-A opponents.

The Braves play zero I-A opponents. What's next, the National Championship teams being considered for the Super Bowl?

The argument is not whether or not McNair is a good quarterback.

He is. I would even go so far as to say he is a great quarterback.

But great quarterbacks do not necessarily make Heisman winners.

Todd Collins (Michigan) and Kordell Stewart (Colorado) are great quarterbacks but the talent level they're competing with has made them longshots at best for the Heisman.

The argument is whether or not McNair is the best college football player in the nation.

But no one will ever know because his talent level is not being tested by a Division I-A defense like that of Illinois or Washington State.

Even teams like Michigan or Southern Cal, who don't even rank in the top 30 defensively in the nation, would cut McNair's Heisman-like numbers in half simply because the talent level on that of an even average I-A football team is far superior to that of a Division I-AA program.

Reichert receives suspension

Backup QB blames verbal exchange with Coach Spoo

By PAUL DEMPSEY
Staff writer

Ron Reichert

Backup quarterback Ron Reichert is serving a one-game suspension and will not make the trip to Macomb this weekend for Eastern's game against Western Illinois, said Panther head coach Bob Spoo Wednesday.

Reichert did not want to discuss the situation, but did confirm that the suspension was a result of an exchange of words between himself and Spoo. "I guess you could call it that," Reichert said of the disagreement. "I don't want to talk about it now. I'd just be digging my own grave."

The quarterback depth chart for the game against Western now takes on an interesting shape after events that have shaken the Panther camp the past two weeks.

Freshman Mark Swinning will make his first collegiate start on Saturday, after Spoo bypassed previous starter Pete Mauch.

Mauch had started Eastern's first six games, but will now serve as the No. 2 quarterback behind Swinning.

Because of the dismissal of all-purpose running back Bill Korosec last week, Mauch will be returning punts - a position he gained some experience in last season.

The third string quarterback for the Western game is walk-on Tim Gross who has not had any game experience, but will make the trip because of the one-game suspensions Reichert and backup quarterback Mark Doherty are serving.

And, in an emergency role, receiver Greg Jensik has been nominated to make the calls for the Panthers.

The suspension of Reichert adds to a frustrating season for the junior transfer.

Reichert transferred to Eastern from Northern Illinois in the spring after a falling out with the Huskie coaching staff.

Reichert had hoped for more playing time but has been stuck in a reserve role since Mauch won the starting QB job at the start of the Eastern football season.

Offensive line not intact

Heading into its bye week, the Eastern football team was hoping the week off would heal its extremely banged-up offensive line.

But things haven't quite gone as planned. The Panthers' front five will be minus left tackle Duane Conway, arguably their best offensive lineman, when they travel to Macomb to face Western Illinois Saturday.

Conway has been hindered by a strained tricep muscle for the past few weeks, an injury that hasn't cleared up like coaches thought it might, and which will keep the senior tackle out of action for at least two weeks.

"He's scheduled to get an MRI Thursday in Chicago," said Panther trainer Rob Doyle. "He can't play for at least two weeks. We'll find out more on Friday or early Monday after his test."

"He tore another portion of that, so we're going to wait on some medical advice, and let him rest at least a couple of weeks," coach Bob Spoo said.

With Conway out, Aaron Hill, who was nursing a knee injury himself after the Northern Iowa game, will move from guard to left tackle, while sophomore Charlie Roche will fill in at left guard.

Right tackle Mike Richart has also been battered this season, but the Panthers are confident he'll be able to hold up for the remainder of the year.

"He's wearing a shoulder harness on his right arm, and he's got surgery scheduled after the season on his left elbow, for which he's wearing a real fancy brace," Doyle said. "He's kind of like a bionic person right now, wearing all these things and like six rolls of tape, but these are all protective measures."

Eastern has already lost starting guard Don Mensik for the season to a knee injury suffered against the University of Texas at El Paso.

• Injuries to the offensive line has not only hurt the offense, but the defense has been affected as well. Backups have been forced into playing against the No. 1 defense in practice the past two weeks so as to not get anyone any more hurt than they already are on the offensive line.

"We stayed fundamental last week," said defensive coordinator John Smith. "We're healthy, but the offense is hurting us in that we've got to have the offense simulate Western Illinois."

"With all the injuries, we're going against a bunch of Rudys."

• With freshman Mark Swinning starting at quarterback and Mark Doherty serving his one-game suspension this week, Spoo added to the controversy at the position by announcing that Ron Reichert will not make the trip to Western either.

Walk-on Tim Grose will travel with the squad as the Panthers' No. 3 quarterback behind Swinning and former starter Pete Mauch. But Spoo said Mauch will return punts and kicks in Saturday's game, and could even take some snaps if Swinning falters badly.

"I think he's getting better each day," Spoo

Hamelin gets AL rookie of the year

NEW YORK (AP) - Bob Hamelin, who inherited Kansas City's designated hitting job from George Brett and became one of the league's best sluggers, was an easy winner Wednesday as AL rookie of the year.

Hamelin was the first DH to win the rookie award, and the first Royals player to earn it since Lou Piniella in 1969. The honor, now named the Jackie Robinson Rookie Award, was first presented in 1947 to one major leaguer.

Hamelin hit 24 home runs, drove in 65 runs and batted .282. He led AL rookies in homers, RBIs, runs (64), hits (88), doubles (25), walks (56) and games (101), when the players' strike started Aug. 12.

"I did spend quite a few years in the minor leagues. I definitely paid my dues," he said. "That does make it a little more rewarding."

Hamelin, who also played 24 games at first base, received 25 of 28 first-place votes in balloting by the Baseball Writers Association of America. He also got three second-place votes and finished with 134 points.

Cleveland outfielder Manny Ramirez, who hit .269 with 17 home runs and 60 RBIs, was runner-up with 44 points. Texas outfielder Rusty Greer, who hit .314 with 46 RBIs and also made a diving catch that finished off Kenny Rogers' perfect game, got the other three first-place votes and was third with 42 points.

The NL rookie award will be announced Thursday.

Hamelin, 26, was drafted by the Royals in 1988. Despite showing power, his progress to the majors was slowed by back problems.
